COUNT VON LUCKNER C. OF C. GUEST

GERMAN NAVAL HERO WILL BE SPEAKER HERE ON JANUARY 25

Commander of Raiding Ship Headlines Program.

RAN BLOCKADE Dinner Will be Served in Travelers' Hotel.

Count Felix von Luckner, German naval hero, who commanded the South Seas raiding ship the "Seeadler" during the World war, will be the speaker at the twelfth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce which will be held in the dining room of the Travelers' hotel, East Fourth street, Wednesday evening, January 25, it was announced today.

Betz Will Preside. President Joseph Betz of the chamber will preside at the meeting which will be preceded by a dinner, while the speaker will be introduced by W. E. Wells, Newell pottery manufacturer and national councillor of the chamber. Music will be in charge of Cochran's orchestra, while the group singing will be led by Attorney Blaine H. Cochran. New dinner service set, presented to the chamber by W. E. Wells, will be used for the first time at this dinner. Seating capacity of the dining hall is limited to approximately 200.

Looking Over the Water. The World's Real Ocean. Where's the $1,200 Man? Alaska, Champion Bargain.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

SAN SIMEON, Cal., Jan. 12.—THIS spot, on the edge of the Pacific Ocean, supplies texts for sermons, or philosophical musing — especially at four in the morning, with the white line of the sun just visible in the moonlight.

YOU see only rolling breakers and gray water beyond, but you know of things that you cannot see.

Asia is across the water, and Ceylon pearlfishers are going "all naked to the hungry sharks;" old temples of India tangled in the jungle; 400,000,000 patients, Chinese bearing their burdens; 60,000,000 clever Japanese ruling their neighbors, because they borrow knowledge; Koreans and Filipinos crying for independence that they won't get, because they are not ready for it; sacred monkeys around a Hindu temple; sacred snakes, worshipped in a Chinese temple, and yellow gold, the important power everywhere.

TO the south shines a gigantic planet, with its own little "ring" of mist, defying the greater light and bigger ring of the moon. More important, to men in their boats, is the little San Simeon lighthouse, flashing its intermittent light on a rocky point to the north.

THAT night shines over its path of water, lights and warns of rocks close by. Such are the wisdom and science of man, lighting our way in this little corner of space, which is the limit of our knowing and thinking.

THOSE that live along the little eastern ocean should come here, see the world's real ocean, and know for themselves how hard it is for a human mind to think across interstellar space to our nearest star neighbor.

WITH the rising of the sun, comes Steve of San Luis Obispo, bringing the latest edition of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, and that newspaper, with news of Alaska, in big letters, reminds you of interesting and profitable things too far away.

FROM the Seattle P. I. you learn that it is hard to make a mistake, when you buy on this continent. Seward bought Alaska from Russia for $8,000,000.

23 INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY GRAND JURORS

Twenty-three true bills, including five secret counts, were returned by the grand jury which filed its report with Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones at Lisbon at 5:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon after examining 86 witnesses. Thirteen charges were ignored.

Two indictments were returned against Charles Hammond, of the Penn-Ohio Coal company, Stop 33 on the Youngstown & Ohio River railroad. One count charges Hammond with assault and battery upon John Krachko, and another with shooting at with intent to kill Andrew Novak of West Point.

Other indictments are: William Veitmer, West Point, shooting at with intent to wound Roy Roadman. Hayward Thompson, colored and Jerry Howell, East Liverpool, robbery of Thomas Palmer. Jerry Howell, East Liverpool, shooting at with intent to kill Mason Conley. Michael Terlecki, Youngstown, carrying concealed weapons. Laura M. Hoard, uttering and publishing a fraudulent instrument. Jess Brooks, colored, Wellsville, cutting with intent to wound Harry Cuppy.

B. T. Hogue, Wellsville, criminal assault. George W. Seeley, East Liverpool, uttering a fraudulent check on Pennsylvania Avenue Motor Sales company. Francis Gordon, East Liverpool, possession of narcotics. Edward Grim, East Liverpool, uttering and publishing a false instrument (two bills). William Richards, East Liverpool, carrying concealed weapons. Wilson Warlick, Lisbon, colored, assault and battery on Lucy Warlick. Harry Hanley, Salineville, criminal assault.

Lester Higley, East Liverpool and Freeport, Ill., conversion of a motor vehicle owned by Trotter company, East Liverpool. James Farrell, Youngstown, pointing firearms. The grand jury, in reporting upon the condition of the county jail, said: "After a careful inspection by the members of the grand jury, we find the county jail in a clean and sanitary condition. We highly praise Sheriff George Wright and his aides for keeping it in this way."

Lemuel Wasbutzky, of East Liverpool, was foreman of the jury.

FEDERHAR GETS DONAHEY SHOP

Deal Closed for St. Clair Avenue Meat Market.

Alex Federhar, proprietor of the Quality meat market in the City market house, today closed a deal for the E. S. Donahay shop, St. Clair avenue, and will take charge next Monday. Donahay will retire.

The Donahay market is one of the most modern shops in the city, having its own refrigerating plant. The deal does not include the two-story building, which is owned by Donahay. Donahay has been in the meat business here for about 12 years, occupying the Vorndam building in St. Clair avenue, now owned by J. A. Anderson, until the present building was erected about two years ago.

Federhar, the new owner, has operated a stand in the city market house for three years. His market house location is to be vacated.

CLEAN SLATE FOR WAR VETS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Charges of desertion against more than a score of tottering veterans of the Civil War are removed in bills which the house sent to the senate today.

The bills introduced, members said, because the aged veterans wanted to spare the feelings of descendants who might otherwise discover a blot on their family tree. Representative Blanton, Democrat of Texas, questioned the wisdom of the house's action, but did not oppose passage of the measures.

Plan Double Funeral For Victims of Gas At New Cumberland

Marjorie Ann, 10-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bradley, is removed to East Liverpool Hospital.

Double funeral for Mr. and Mrs. George Bradley, New Cumberland, who died from the effects of carbon monoxide fumes caused by a gas fire, Tuesday, will be conducted tomorrow.

Services for Mrs. Bradley will be held in the Catholic church in New Cumberland at 10 a. m. in charge of Rev. Father Olszewski. The body will then be taken to the home of Mrs. George Bradley, Sr., where services will be conducted at 2 p. m. in charge of Rev. W. S. Hamilton, pastor of the Methodist Protestant church. Mr. Bradley was a member of the Presbyterian church, while his wife was a Catholic. Burial will be made in the New Cumberland cemetery.

Baby is Recovering. Marjorie Ann, 10-month-old daughter of the two victims, who was also overcome, was believed to be recovering today. She was removed to the East Liverpool hospital this morning. Relatives of Mrs. Bradley will provide the baby with a home.

Mrs. Bradley was a graduate of the Central High school. She is survived by her parents and six brothers: John, East Liverpool; George, James, Charles and Henry, Chester, and Thomas of Detroit, and two sisters, Mrs. A. Duffy, of East Liverpool, and Miss Mary Loughley, of Moundsville, W. Va.

LINDBERGH GOES TO COLON TODAY

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Jan. 12.—In preparation for his extended tour of at least one South American country and several Caribbean nations, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will take off for Colon today.

LEON TROTZKY BECOMES MYSTERY

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Leon Trotzky has become an international mystery. The past 48 hours have brought conflicting reports as to the whereabouts of Trotzky.

One report has it that Trotzky and many of his important followers have been ordered banished from Moscow. Another report says that Trotzky has defied the order of banishment. Still another has it that Trotzky is already in virtual retirement.

SHIRLEY LEWIS IS FINED $100

Shirley Lewis was fined $100 and costs by Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today after he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of possessing intoxicating liquors.

Lewis was arrested after Chief of Police McDermott and Captain Conley raided his home in West Ninth street yesterday afternoon. Police claim that Lewis "dumped" a quantity of whiskey before they could reach him. More than a case of home brew was found in the house, police said.

Police said that the raid on the house was made following the receipt of complaints that men under the influence of intoxicating liquor had been seen leaving the Lewis home.

$500,000 FIRE AT ASBURY PARK

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Jan. 12.—A fire which destroyed the beach casino on the boardwalk here early today with a loss estimated at half a million dollars, was brought under control shortly before 4 o'clock this morning.

Paris Receives Kellogg Proposals. PARIS, Jan. 12.—A note from Secretary of State Kellogg regarding the proposals for creating a pact to outlaw war was received at the foreign office this afternoon. The contents were not disclosed, but an accompanying cablegram from M. Claudel, the French ambassador at Washington, said that the note had made a good impression upon him.

DOUBLE SEWER PIPE OUTPUT

Call Night Force at East End Plant.

Output of the East End plant of the American Vitriol Products company will be doubled starting February 1, when the plant will operate with day and night shifts.

Orders for the night turn were received by Superintendent C. P. Deemer yesterday from the main office at Akron. The night shift will work 10 hours daily and five days per week. The day shift has a nine-hour day.

Operation of the plant at night will offer employment to approximately 35 additional skilled and unskilled workers. Workers from Toronto and Empire will probably be brought to this city to fill places for which skilled hands are required.

The plant now employs about 110 men and has a monthly capacity of 2,200 tons of finished product. The company is now filling a large government order for sewer pipe.

OHIO COMPANY ABANDONS MINES

GALLIPOLIS, O., Jan. 12.—As a result of the Ohio coal strike which has now been in effect for more than nine months, the Fomeroy and Athens Coal company today served notice on owners of the land on which their mines are located that they have permanently discontinued operation in the vicinity and will remove all equipment.

The mines are located on Thomas Fork near Pomeroy. Owners of the coal lands filed suit today to prevent removal of machinery from the mines, claiming this is a violation of the terms under which the land was leased.

Snyder Slayers May Die Tonight Despite Court Stay For Woman

Sing Sing Prison Warden Says Woman and Her Lover Will be Electrocuted at 11 O'clock if Attorney General Rules Supreme Justice Levy's Order is Illegal.

EVERYTHING IS IN READINESS AT OSSINING FOR DEATH MARCH

State Officials at Albany Instruct Deputy Attorney General in New York City to Ask Court Chieftain to Vacate Order Calling for Murderess' Presence in Suit Over Insurance.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Ruth Snyder and her paramour, Henry Judd Gray, must die in the electric chair tonight for the brutal murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Snyder, art editor, unless Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing, of his own volition, desires to delay the execution until tomorrow night or Saturday night.

Attorney General Albert Ottinger, formally announced at 1 o'clock this afternoon that he had reached a formal decision that

COURT ORDER ALSO HALTED ALBERT PATRICK ELECTROCUTION

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—It was pointed out today at the court of appeals that Supreme Court Justice Levy's order in New York City granting a stay of execution to Ruth Snyder is not the first time a court order has been issued halting an electrocution.

It was done in the case of Albert T. Patrick, who was convicted of killing William M. Rice, New York millionaire, in 1900.

After the state's highest court has unanimously affirmed Patrick's conviction, one of the judges of the court, just a few days before the date set for Patrick's execution, signed an order staying the execution.

Subsequently other court orders were issued staying Patrick's execution. This continued over a period of about ten years and Patrick was finally pardoned by former Governor John A. Dix.

the order of Supreme Court Justice Aaron Levy staying Mrs. Snyder's execution until tomorrow" was illegal and cannot act to stay the execution."

Attorney General Ottinger said he would have his formal decision completed in about half an hour.

"The purpose of the decision is that I hold that Justice Levy's order was illegal and cannot stay the execution set for tonight unless the warden of Sing Sing, of his own volition, desires to delay the execution until later in the week," Ottinger announced.

SING SING PRISON AUTHORITIES PREPARE FOR DOUBLE EXECUTION

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Despite a Levy has a right to postpone the execution then they will be postponed. Ruth Snyder, the authorities at Sing Sing prison went forward today with their preparations to electrocute her and her former sweetheart, Henry Judd Gray, at the originally set hour of 11 o'clock tonight.

Not until he is definitely told to do otherwise by state officials, whose advice he has sought, will Warden Lewis E. Lawes change the hour of the double execution.

In ordering Mrs. Snyder's execution stayed, Supreme Court Justice Aaron Levy directed Warden Lawes to show cause at 10 o'clock tomorrow why he should not produce the condemned woman as a witness in a suit involving the $95,000 of insurance on the life of her husband.

Warden Awaits Instructions. "I have asked the advice of Attorney Albert Ottinger and Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieh, state commissioner of corrections," said Warden Lawes this morning. "If they agree that Justice

ATTORNEY GENERAL WILL REPRESENT PRISON WARDEN IN COURT FIGHT

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Attorney General Albert Ottinger early today declined to say what he would do about the stay of execution granted Mrs. Ruth Snyder by Supreme Court Justice Levy.

"I must have a few hours to think this matter over," Attorney General Ottinger said. "I probably will have something definite to announce later in the day."

Ottinger will represent Warden Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing before Justice Levy tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock when the order to show cause why Mrs. Snyder's execution should not be delayed until the electric chair tonight. It is expected that Gray's execution will be delayed until after the legal battle before Justice Levy tomorrow morning.

Dr. Kieh pointed out that there was nothing in the law compelling Warden Lawes to send Gray or Mrs. Snyder to the chair tonight. He could delay both executions until Saturday night. The practice of putting condemned persons to death on Thursday night is only a custom.

Belief was expressed in some quarters at the capital early today that Attorney General Ottinger may appear before Justice Levy tomorrow morning and consent to delaying Mrs. Snyder's execution until after the trial of the insurance suit. The position taken by Ottinger it was said, will depend largely upon what Governor Gray says.

"I am not a lawyer. I cannot discuss Smith thinks should be done."

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver, 999-2598 E. WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart.
(Washington Correspondent for Central Press and Review-Tribune.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The heathen Chinese know no holidays, except once per annum, but when once they start celebrating that once, they celebrate a plenty.

Never having heard of Sunday, barring the merest handful of them, they don't observe it. Foreign devils in their midst may, but the Chinese go right to working, same as usual. Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, the king of England's birthday, the anniversary of the fall of the Bastille, Veinteceno de Mayo, Christmas, the whole list of civilized festivals, from top to bottom—they're all one to the benighted Mongolians. They don't pay the slightest attention to any of them.

But they certainly make up for lost time when it comes New Year's.

For from two to four weeks, while that New Year's blow-out is going on, not a commercial or industrial wheel turns in China, if any native assistance is required to turn it. The Chinese simply WILL NOT transact business until the last New Year's fire-cracker's popped.

Naturally, occidentals in this country cuss something awful at such a long hiatus in all its normal activities. A day or two wouldn't be so bad, but to have a crimp thrown into all of life's serious pursuits, not alone for a solid week, but for a couple or three or four weeks, is pretty aggravating.

It wouldn't be possible among any people but the Chinese, according to the foreign residents.

before spring. Our hotel lobbies swarm with business representatives, raring and tearing their hair because they can't "get action" out of department functionaries they're here to see. Lawyers, waiting for the supreme court justices to get through merry-making 'round their respective holiday firesides, don't care how long it takes, but maybe their clients do.

The Chinese New Year's the limit, but it comes but once a year. They don't celebrate the anniversary of the Manchukuo dynasty's overthrow, the annexation of Tibet and Confucius' birthday, too.

How the Other Half Behaves

Only His Feelings Hurt.

LOS ANGELES.—Slipping through loose floorboards in the auto while his father, Patrolman G. B. Reese, was taking him for a ride, three-year-old Garvin fell to the pavement and escaped by inches being run over by the rear wheels. Before the terrified father could stop his car the boy quickly got up, obviously incensed by such unceremonious dumping into the street, and started to run away. His father caught him and took him to a hospital, where it was found that nothing but his feelings had been hurt.

That's His Business.
GALESBURG, Ill.—Whether it would be proper to list bootlegging as an occupation in the Galesburg new city directory is what is puzzling James Barrett, publisher of the directory. When he approached a man in soliciting his address and occupation for the book, the man replied: "Put me down as a bootlegger." When Barrett demurred, Haskins insisted. "Why not? That's my business—put it in," he said.

It gets progressively worse year by year. First it was just Christmas and New Year's. Then it got to be the Holiday week. Next a few days were tacked onto the beginning and added onto the end. Now the capital downs most of its tools by mid-December and doesn't pick the last of 'em up again until mid-January.

Congress takes just a fortnight's recess. The executive departments are actually closed for only five and a half days, but they run under a mighty slow bell for three weeks. All the main guys and their principal assistants are scattered hither and yon. Nobody's at hand to decide anything of much importance.

Some of the members of the diplomatic corps find time to go clear home to Europe, spend a few days and get back while the near vacation lasts.

It's a mistake to assume that this prolonged suspension of the whole "works," here in Washington, doesn't cause a certain amount of inconvenience.

Congress literally is jammed with half a dozen times the volume of legislation, investigations and miscellaneous duties that it can get away with

CHAPTER XL.

"I've thought a great deal. You will remember when our trouble occurred four years ago I said a great deal about duty and consciousness. You hated both words—still do, I fancy. But I am forced to use them again.

"When you came to us, I tried not to talk too much. It was my hope to show what I felt by actions rather than words. But I did make it clear to you that I assumed full responsibility for your future.

"I realize as keenly as you do that you were an honest man when you went to prison—and that you would always have been an honest man. When I learned that you were innocent—and free—I had an idea of what prison must have done for you. I told myself, and I told you, that no matter what you did in the future, it was my fault. Your acts were mine. If you came from prison a hardened criminal—then it was my fault, and any criminal acts you committed were my acts. Because they wouldn't have been committed if I hadn't been unfair to you at first.

"It may amaze you, Bob, to know now—when I am confronted with a rather ghastly working out of my theory—I remain honest and conscientious. Let us not mince words: You have stolen $200,000 worth of bonds. I have no blame for you. I'm sorry—and hurt—but I not only don't blame you; I take all responsibility on my shoulders. You never would have done this had not the original fault occurred. If you steal again and again—it will always be my fault.

"What I want tonight is to make this clear to you. I also want to reassure you about something else. You will probably be arrested by my board of directors and charged with the theft of these bonds."

Bob looked up, a startled question in his eyes.

"Yes, Bob—that is inevitable—or nearly so. They are not fools; they know you took them. I merely want you to understand that when they do have you arrested you are not to become frightened. You see, Bob—this offense is not yours—it is mine."

Bob groped for words. "I don't see what you are driving at, Mr. Borden."

"I am trying to tell you that you are safe. If you persist in robbing me, I shall try to smile through it. You are entitled to safety. You are entitled to your revenge."

"I have determined definitely on a course of action. My directors have given me three days to produce those bonds. I shall wait the full three days. Then I shall go to them and say that I have failed. The bonds are gone, and I have nothing to offer them in exchange."

"There isn't a man there but knows I am honest. No one of them thinks I would steal. They have already told me that they are going to have you arrested and tried for this robbery. But I can forestall them—and I will."

His voice stopped suddenly. Bob asked a single question.

"How?"

"Simply enough, Bob. Since I am conscientious in my belief that whatever you do is my responsibility, I shall notify my friends that the moment they swear out a warrant for your arrest, I shall seek the district attorney and confess that I stole those bonds. That will leave you quite safe. Bob. They could never convict one man of a crime which another man has confessed, could they?"

Borden rose and stood looking down at Bob Terry. He seemed old—but somehow not broken. Never before had he appeared to possess the strength that was his at this moment.

"You've succeeded marvelously well, Bob, haven't you?" His tone became wistful. "And perhaps when all this needless suffering is ended, you may understand me a little better, don't you think?"

Bob did not move. He sat hunched forward, staring at the floor.

He was experiencing a sensation of utter futility. He did not speak. He knew that he dared not trust himself. He arose suddenly and strode from the room and out of the house.

Bob Terry spent a sleepless, miserable night. Things had not panned out as he expected. There was no bitterness where bitterness should have been, no feeling of triumph over having attained his goal. He gave a grudging admiration to Peter Borden—and he didn't want to admire Borden.

He avoided the office and his friends. He tried walking, hoping that the crisp fall air would help clear the cobwebs from his brain and enable him to understand many things which were foggy. Nothing seemed to help. His mind was a blank, so far as logical, connected thinking was concerned.

He was not afraid. He had faith in Carmody and now Peter Borden had offered unexpected protection. Bob's attitude robbed Bob's position of all its glory. If the man had cringed at all his cruelty, But Borden merely accepted the edict of an adverse fate.

Lois, too, was a surprise. He had seen her once during the day. She was driving through the park with Bruce Richardson. Richardson's gentle, kindly face radiated a queer happiness; Lois was tense. Neither saw Bob—and he was glad. He knew Lois less well than he imagined. But, for that matter, he knew nobody in this crisis.

Even Kathleen. He was disappointed in Kathleen. He had expected her to be horrified. Instead, she sympathized with him and did not scold. Of

MORE THAN 300 BUYERS ATTEND POTTERY SHOW

One Hundred Sixty-five Displays at Pittsburgh.

ORDERS PLACED Annual Association Dinner Next Tuesday.

By M. K. Zimmerman.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 12. — The 48th annual pottery and glass exposition ended here this week with 165 manufacturers of dinnerware and glassware, coupled with import and jobbing lines quartered in four hotels. There are 84 manufacturers at the Fort Pitt hotel, with 70 manufacturers, jobbers and import lines at the William Penn hotel, six lines at the Hotel Henry and five at the new Roosevelt hotel.

More than 300 buyers registered at course she was the niece of a convict and private secretary to a man who controlled the political machinery of the state by the power of his unethical code, but she was supposed to be in love with him—and a man looks upon the woman he expects to marry as a bulwark of honesty. He hated to think that perhaps the colossal sum had been the deciding factor with Kathleen. Two hundred thousand dollars—

Then he told himself he was unreasonable. He tried to make himself believe that Kathleen's acceptance of his transgression argued well for their future. They would be together; he experienced a qualm at the thought that his act had definitely put Lois out of his life.

He visited the office once—at three in the afternoon. There was a note on his desk in Kathleen's firm, fine handwriting:

Dear Bob:

Meet me at home about six-thirty. I wish to have dinner with you.

At six-thirty he was there. Kathleen greeted him as casually as though nothing had happened to alter the even trend of their lives. On the way to the cozy little restaurant which both liked, she chatted of inconsequentialities; spoke lightly of affairs in the office, and never once hinted of the problem which so disturbed him.

It was not until the dinner was finished and Bob had lighted a cigarette that she broached the subject. They were seated in a corner, partly screened by potted palms, unobserved by the other diners. A modest orchestra of piano, violin and flute dispensed music of a sort.

"Naturally, Bob, you understand that what I have to say is important."

"Yes," He didn't know why he should understand that, but he did.

Her eyes were unusually bright as she leaned closer.

"Bob," she whispered, "you are in danger."

"? There he forced a smile. "No I'm not."

"You are."

"No, Kathleen. Borden himself told me that before he'd allow me to go to prison for this thing, he would confess that he did it."

Her eyes widened. "He told you that?"

"Yes," Bob opened his fingers, which had been clenched. "He surprised me. I hadn't expected—anyway, that's what he said, and I believe he meant it. So you see, I'm not in danger."

She shook her head. "That does change things. I was afraid—"

"What caused you to become frightened?"

"I learned something today." She screened her eyes that he might not read more than she cared to tell. "John Carmody has no idea of protecting you in case of trouble."

"No idea of—You're crazy, Kathleen."

"I'm not crazy. I know what I'm talking about. I've been blind to a good many things. Something happened in the office today—Don't ask me what, or how. It is enough for me to tell you what I know. Carmody advised this thing because he wished to get even with Borden—but also because it suited his interest to have you in prison again. You're on pretty thin ice—or, at least, I thought you were."

He shook his head in bewilderment. "What possible interest can Carmody have in whether I'm in prison or not? It doesn't sound reasonable—"

"You must take my word for it!" Her tone was almost harsh, forbidding further question. "What you tell me about Borden is more relieving than you know. So long as he sticks to that determination—and I fancy he will—you are safe. But if he ever gets within sight of the state penitentiary and becomes inclined to change his mind—What I'm driving at is this, Bob; you mustn't let any more grass grow under your feet."

"What do you mean?"

"Those bonds are securely hidden, aren't they?"

"Yes. In a bank vault—under an assumed name."

"Fine. But they mustn't stay there. Carmody has ways of finding out pretty nearly everything he wishes to know in this city. He'll discover that hiding place—and then God knows what will happen. If they fasten enough evidence on you, it may be that Borden's confession will not be strong enough to keep you out of the penitentiary."

Bob was impressed. Kathleen was speaking swiftly, compellingly. He felt the strength of her personality sweeping over him. And she frightened him.

"What am I to do, Kathleen?"

She did not answer immediately. Her voice came in a whisper.

"Bob—do you wish to marry me?"

He frowned. "I don't know what you mean."

"Do you love me? Do you still wish to marry me?"

"Of course. Aren't we engaged?"

the Fort Pitt during the first two days. This list exceeds that of a year ago. While there is some "looking around" being done, this is small compared with former years. Orders are being placed in both dinnerware and glassware.

About 10 new dinnerware shapes are being shown. Decorations are running large to sprays, although all lines include border patterns. A small compartment plate, decorated, is one of the pleasing features presented by the Edwin M. Knowles China company of Newell, W. Va.

Volume business is being placed on the ivory body dinnerware lines, although there is a demand for the white body dinnerware.

Majority of the buyers who are now in the market, and many of whom are to visit the East Liverpool market today and Friday are from the eastern and middle states. Western and southern trade will not arrive here until Sunday and Monday. Several Canadian buyers are registered.

The annual dinner of the Western Glass & Pottery association will be held in the large banquet room of the William Penn hotel next Tuesday evening, followed by a dance. At that time Secretary Frank A. H. Lange of Cambridge Springs, Pa., will announce the result of the election of officers for the fiscal year. Present officers are:

President, John H. Harris; first vice president, Francis I. Simmers; second vice president, Henry W. Nickel; third vice president, Maurice A. Smith; fourth vice president, L. F. Eversley.

Directors, Albert Binswanger, W. S. Burford, D. H. Cushman, A. Bryce Palmer, R. G. West.

Secretary-treasurer, F. A. Lange.

Territorial vice presidents, Baltimore, Wm. L. Tickle; Cincinnati, Carl A. Larson; New York City, Harry B. Whitney; C. W. Young; Chicago, W. R. Lazure, W. C. Minnemyer; Boston, Paul M. Phillips.

Communist Debate On Trotsky Ousting Has Many Features

MOSCOW.—The bitter debate about the expulsion of all members of the Trotsky faction from the Communist Party at the party congress was not without flashes of wit.

M. P. Tomsky, president of the Central Council of Trade Unions, in a sarcastic anti-opposition speech burst into a series of questions to the oppositioners, he himself supplying the answers except in one case.

"Why did the workers in the streets throw rotten cucumbers and torn go-loshes at the opposition speakers?" Tomsky asked. And before he could answer an oppositioner, presumably Rakovsky, shouted across the hall: "Because they had no roses!"

"They talk about having the sympathy of the people," the labor leader continued. "I'm afraid much sympathy if repeated will land the oppositioner in the hospitals."

To stop the importation of machinery considered useless, among it being threshing machines of 60 different types, locomotives of 30 types and engines of 35 types, Estonia is considering establishment of a control system for agricultural machinery.

COUGHED SO HARD DISTURBED SHOW

Then Doctor Told Her Quick-est Way to Get Relief—Cold Soon Disappeared

By taking the timely advice of her doctor, Miss Margaret Miller, like numbers of East Liverpool people, has found the quickest and surest home treatment to end a cough or deep seated chest cold.

Miss Miller had neglected her cold several days, thinking it would "cure itself." But instead, it started spreading down towards her lungs, causing her to cough so hard in a movie the other night that people stared at her. The day following she began to feel "feverish," feared pneumonia and called her doctor for advice.

Relief began inside of an hour when the doctor gave her double doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of wild cherry, terpinhydrate and other ingredients which have relieved even the most extreme hospital cases. She felt the comforting, healing warmth from her throat deep down into her chest. By night the "feverish" feeling had left and she was able to breathe freely and sleep without coughing. The next day she awoke to find that practically all traces of the cold were gone, and in a day or so, doctors report, she was as well as ever.

Note: See other cases reported daily—all certified to this paper by the physician who treated each case.

Doctors find that this hospital medicine does far more than stop coughing instantly. It penetrates and heals inflamed linings of the breathing passages. Absorbed by the system it quickly reduces phlegm, loosens that "feverish" grippy feeling and drives out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Cherry Pectoral now and you'll feel like a different person tomorrow. At all druggists, 60c; twice as much in 1.00 hospital size.

Capital Punishment

Indications today, the day set for the double execution in Sing Sing prison of Ruth Brown Snyder and her paramour, Henry Judd Gray, convicted of first degree murder of the woman's husband, were that prison authorities would exercise the privilege permitted by law and give the man another lease on life in view of the stay granted the woman by Supreme Justice Court Justice Aaron J. Levy of New York.

In order to permit the murderess' appearance in an insurance company's court fight to annual the $95,000 policies on Ruth's slain husband, the murderess was given another day of life. And since the electrocution of Judd is scheduled to take place during the week of January 9, the prison warden is expected to delay the march to the death chamber.

Thus attention is again directed to this sensational case, as well as the fates of 96 other men and one woman who are awaiting their doom in the death rows of American prisons and jails. And it brings to the fore the agitation for and against capital punishment, in which the electric chair and the hangman's noose are the instruments of the law.

Thirty-four persons have been hanged or electrocuted within the last month and, except in New York, the District of Columbia and Massachusetts, agitation for abolition of the death penalty is virtually non-existent.

Crime is on the increase everywhere, according to police statistics. And in the opinion of experts who have studied the situation, capital punishment is a deterrent of murder. As long as it is on the statute books, the law providing the death penalty should be permitted to take its course.

Pan-Americanism

An American organization called the Foreign Policy association wants President Coolidge to declare in his Pan-American address at Havana, or in a message to congress—

"That before intervening in any Latin-American state, the United States government would first consult the governing board of the Pan-American Union, which is composed of the diplomatic representatives of the Latin-American states in Washington."

The proposal may be worth discussing, in view of the fact that Latin-America seems to be lining up against the United States from fear of "Yankee aggression."

There isn't anything necessarily very radical or unusual about the proposed policy. There is even precedent for it. It has been invoked in principle on more than one occasion, when the United States called upon the "A. B. C. powers" to help solve a perplexing Spanish-American problem.

"But that would modify the Monroe Doctrine!" some object.

Others reply that nobody today seems to know just what the Monroe Doctrine is, and that anyway it might be a good thing to modify it into a Pan-American Doctrine, as the only hope of keeping the rest of the hemisphere lined up with the United States.

The Monroe Doctrine was declared, and has been maintained, for two purposes—to protect the independence of the other American republics and, by preventing European powers from gobbling them up, to provide additional safeguards for our own country. It has served those purposes well.

But now the Latin-American countries seem afraid that we ourselves are going to gobble them up, and are running to the League of Nations for protection. Meanwhile the Pan-American Union, which was expected to hold this New World as a solid unit of American democracy against the Old World, is going to pieces.

A "Pan-American Doctrine" might save the situation, perpetuating the Monroe Doctrine in a new form adapted to the new age.

The Job For Women Flyers

Miss Ruth Nichols, the woman who piloted the plane that made the first non-stop flight from New York to Miami, may know a lot about flying, but she doesn't seem to know the first thing about grabbing off fame and notoriety.

When asked about women flying over the Atlantic, she replied, "That is in the far future." And she added, "I should like to see aviation taken out of the curiosity class."

She further explained that she believed women's greatest immediate contribution to aviation would be by more women taking "safe and sane" flights, so as to build up public confidence in traveling by air. Mrs. Lindbergh's recent trip to Mexico City is an outstanding example of such service to the cause.

Miss Nichols' notions will not be popular with the spectacular women flyers, but they are sound and are quite likely to prove genuinely useful.

Soap In Art

When manufacturers set their advertising departments to work to discover new reasons why the public should buy a product and new uses to which they may put it, results are always obtained.

Thus it comes about that the public is learning to use soap in artistic work. A writer on the subject tells her readers that soap lends itself excellently well to the making of block prints. "With only a cake of soap, a pencil, some paints, and a few common household tools," we are informed, even the "least artistic" of us can do interesting block printing for greeting cards, valentines, book plates, monograms and designs on frocks, curtains and linens of all kinds.

There is special advantage to the beginner in the fact that the soap isn't expensive, and if it is spoiled for art the scraps can still be assembled in the form of soap jelly for humbler but essential tasks.

Children seem to prefer putting soap to such uses. First thing we know, this soap-art combination will sweep the country.

According to a current economic philosophy, the joy-rider and coal-waster are good citizens, helping to put ailing industries back on their feet.

There were 20,000 business failures in this country last year. And about a million successes.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The Home-side bureau is New York's clearing house for murder. All the tangled skeins of bloody crimes are dumped there for unraveling. The showmen hunters are attached to this squad and often follow trails around the world.

The "under cover" attaches never report there. It is their job to mangle in the underworld and pick up crumbs of information. One slip and their goose is cooked. If an urgent matter comes up, they telephone cryptic messages to innocent addresses which are relayed to headquarters.

The homicide attaches are frequently young men who might be taken for collegiates. They may be seen dancing the night away in supper clubs, spending heavily and simulating intoxication. Liquor often loosens otherwise silent tongues.

The most dangerous of all criminal world jobs is that of the "stool pigeon." Once discovered, he is shown no quarter. As a general thing he is a petty criminal himself and his delinquencies are overlooked in exchange for tipping off more important crime.

Every crook fears questioning at the Home-side bureau. It is the one spot where the worldly bluff doesn't go. They meet men of granite who speak their language and who will resort, despite mild denials, to the tortures of the third degree.

It is the theory of expert criminologists every crook has a bit of "yellow." And if the vulnerable spot is touched, he will break down and babble a confession. Incidentally almost every confession is presaged by an overwhelming thirst.

So much so the phrase: "He is drying out"—means he is going to tell all. The age old alibi of every crook is he has been "framed" and while this injustice has taken place it is comparatively rare.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Party Conventions.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12.—Arrangements for the national conventions of the Republican and Democratic parties in 1928 have been started on their way to the preliminary meetings of the national committees of the two parties. These conventions, one of which is reasonably certain to select the next President of the United States, are highly important functions in the maintenance of our government, yet they have no standing or sanction in the Constitution of the United States. They do have a standing in day, because various laws in various states deal with the selection of delegates to the conventions. No national laws, or acts of Congress, provide for holding these conventions, because the Constitution makes the selection of a President the business of an electoral college, and the electors are chosen by the states. Each state determines for itself the method by which it will choose the presidential electors.

Many Americans today have forgotten this basic fact, that the election of the President is a matter largely for the states. They forget, in fact, that the United States is a federal union of separate and sovereign states. We are so accustomed to having conventions to make nominations, and popular voting to decide the election, that we do not realize the fact that a President could legally be chosen without any popular voting whatever, and that for many years at least one state never had a presidential election, but chose its electors through its state legislature.

The Constitution merely says that (Article II Section 1): "Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the Congress; but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector."

This provision has never been changed. The manner of balloting by the electors was altered in the Twelfth Amendment, to provide separate voting for president and vice president, but the method of choosing the electors remains a matter for provision by state legislatures. As to the method of nominating candidates for president and vice president, the constitution does not mention it at all. The electors are to meet in each state, there cast their votes for eligible citizens for the office of president and vice president, and forward the result in sealed and certified manner to the president of the senate, where the votes are assembled, read, tabulated, and the result announced.

It did occur to the drafters of the Constitution that this method might not produce a majority for any one man. This did not disturb them, for they provided that in such event the house of representatives would choose, from the three men having the highest vote in the electoral college, a president, and the senate would similarly choose a vice president.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE

Many of the authors of the Constitution believe that the president and vice president would usually, if not always, be chosen in that way, and thought it a very good plan. They expected the electors in the various states really to make choices, from the highest of which the houses of congress would select the executives.

The First Election.

Remembering that there was no telegraph in those days, no railroads, few daily papers, and little chance for an exchange of views throughout the nation in a short period of time, the idea of a national campaign, popular voting, party nominees, and so on did not exist.

The first presidential elections were made in 1789, January 7, being the date fixed for choosing electors. Popular voting was held in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia. The electors were chosen by the legislatures in Connecticut, Delaware, New Jersey, South Carolina, and Georgia. In New York the two branches of the legislature disagreed about methods of choosing electors, and New York took no part in the election. Other states had not yet ratified the Constitution. On April 6, the electors met in their various states. Already the nation had found one man who was decidedly a national figure, and George Washington received unanimous election as president.

In 1792 North Carolina was added to the state having a popular election for presidential electors. By 1800 Georgia, Kentucky, and Tennessee were also voting, the legislatures still choosing electors elsewhere, and Pennsylvania had abandoned popular elections and was using the legislative method. Steadily the list holding elections grew, until in 1828 New York, Delaware, and Louisiana gave up the legislative method, leaving South Carolina alone using that system. She retained it until after the Civil war.

Meanwhile there developed various means of nominating candidates for president and vice president. Causes held by members of congress of similar political beliefs were the chief method, and Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, and other presidents were nominated in that way. State legislatures also nominated candidates by resolution, advising other states of their selections.

First Nominating Convention.

Probably the first nominating convention was that of the Federalists in 1812, held at New York, which ratified the nomination of De Witt Clinton, previously promulgated by the New York legislature in a caucus. By 1824 popular state conventions began to develop, many of them nominating, or "proposing," Andrew Jackson for president. Jackson was beaten that year, but elected in 1828, when a larger series of local conventions and legislative caucuses sponsored him. In 1830 there was a national convention of the Anti-Masonic party, which adjourned to September, 1831, a year before the election, and nominated candidates for president and vice president. In 1832 the Whig party held a national convention in January, and Jackson, seeing the value of such a gathering for campaign purposes and attracting national wide attention, sponsored a great Democratic convention in May, at which he was unanimously renominated.

From that day forward the convention system of nomination prevailed. The coming of the railroads and telegraph made them practical. State legislatures recognized political parties, and provided legal means for placing their electoral candidates on the ballots. These electors were solemnly pledged to vote, in the electoral college, for the candidates of their party as chosen by the party conventions. Such pledges had no legal status, yet they were never violated. Nowadays the electors are not even pledged. It is accepted that they will vote for their party candidates, and they do so. Few voters know the names of the electors until they see them on the ballot, and probably few read them.

even there. They are listed under their party name and emblem. They are figureheads in the mechanics of an election.

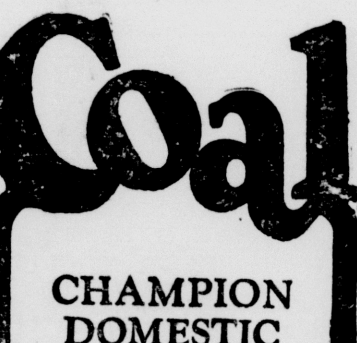

The methods of choosing delegates to the national conventions grew up differently in each state, but in recent years many states have adopted laws providing for primary elections at which delegates are chosen. Some also have laws by which the voters express a choice for president, which binds the delegates, or by which delegates announce in advance their presidential choice. More and more the voter is being given a direct choice in selecting delegates and in expressing presidential choices, yet to a great extent the whole machinery remains a sort of voluntary function by the political parties, developed by time and custom rather than by law. In many states the delegates are still chosen by party committees, in others by state conventions of the party.

The national committees of the parties, which fix the date for the conventions, select the convention city, and make all arrangements as well as deciding how many delegates each state shall have, are but semi-legal bodies. In a few states the parties must choose their committees at a primary election. Usually the choice is through strictly party machinery. Nevertheless, this machinery is now all functioning smoothly, preparing for the great 1928 conventions of next June.

IT'S NOT HARD TO GROW THIN

People all about you can testify to that. Most of the slender figures seen today have been won in easy ways. Many have been won by Marmola prescription tablets, based on a modern scientific discovery. People have used Marmola for 20 years—millions of boxes of it. Now slender figures in almost every circle show what Marmola does.

A book in each box of Marmola gives the formula and states the scientific reasons for results. So users realize how and why effects are beneficial. A way which has done so much for so many deserves a test from you. Make it now, watch the results for a little while, then decide. Ask your druggist today for a $1 box of Marmola.

"My clothes wash
last longer, too
—with this hard-water soap"

"Rinso is certainly the safest and easiest way to wash clothes I ever heard of! I pity women who still use the old way. 'Why, all you have to do is soak your clothes in the rich, creamy Rinso suds for a while before washing, and all the ground-in dirt loosens right out so you don't have to do any hard rubbing. Just soaking in Rinso's soft suds gets my wash sweeter and whiter than if I had spent hours scrubbing and boiling it. My clothes last longer, too! 'I find that Rinso goes farther than other soaps. That's because it's so sudsy. And it saves my hands—doesn't make them a bit red, because with Rinso I don't have to keep them in the hot suds.'"

... Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this one, which is from a woman living right around here...

Rich, creamy suds—in washer or tub

Even in the hardest water Rinso whips at once into soft, thick suds. Long-lasting suds that dirt and stains just can't resist.

In machine or tub, this granulated, hard-water laundry soap washes clothes the whitest white ever.

More than 32,000 demonstrators of washing machines use Rinso for whiter results. The makers of 32 leading washers recommend it for safety and for cleaner clothes.

Just great for tub washing! Saves all hard work. Get the BIG package of Rinso. It's all you need—no bar soaps, chips or softeners. For economy and best results, follow the easy directions on the package.

LODGEMEN LOSE AT DAMASCUS

Elks Drop County Cage League Game to Quakers.

Minus the services of Todd and Post, forwards, the Elks' county league basketball squad went down to defeat at the hands of the strong Damascus club last night on the Damascus court. The score was 45 to 28. The Quakers jumped into the lead shortly after the game got under way and were never headed although the visiting passers put up a game battle in the closing rounds in an effort to overcome the green-jerseyed outfit. Todd led the Elks scorers with five field goals and three fouls for a total of 13 points. Grice, forward, and Gilbert, guard, topped the Damascus in point making, the former with six field goals and two fouls and the latter with the same number of two-pointers and four from the free line.

WAR COMEDY AT AMERICAN "Ham and Eggs at Front" Screen Winner.

Something entirely unique is claimed to have been brought to the screen in Warner Bros.' production, "Ham and Eggs at the Front," which opened a three-day run at the American theatre today. Director Roy Del Ruth has assembled a cast of famous blackface artists and with them interpreted the peculiarly humorous angle from which the American negro saw and participated in the World War. Although the picture has its beginning and end in America, the chief locales are trenches and the rest billets a short way behind them in France. For the first time the laughable and lovable characteristics of colored folks which have been so thoroughly treated in literature and on the stage are brought to the screen. The cast of "Ham and Eggs at the Front" is headed by two comedians of renown in the film world. They are Tom Wilson and Heinie Conklin who star for the first time in a make-up of burnt cork. The role of the dusty mademoiselle is played by Myrna Loy and this is said to be the most remarkable characterization yet given by this actress whose work in recent Warner pictures has attracted unusual notice. GIRLS' SOCIETY FORMED HERE

Officers to be Elected at Meeting Tonight.

Meeting of the Girls' Friendly society, a recently formed organization here, will be held this evening at the home of Miss Melvina Nixon, Fourteenth street. The society will elect officers for the year. The Girls' Friendly society originated in England, the first unit being formed there in 1874. Under the guidance of the church and with membership limited by only one essential, character, the society grew rapidly. Interest of the British clergy and court was aroused and in 1875 the society was formally declared organized and books opened for enrollment. First American units of the society were formed in Lowell, Mass., and in Baltimore. Since their organization, interest in the society has spread rapidly until now there are 1,100 branches in this country, as well as divisions in Scotland, Ireland, Canada, South America, Japan and Australia.

Infant Care

Mothers, you can't start too early to establish a child's serene and tranquil disposition. Even an infant can have a happy, fretless state of uninterrupted health. What will help do this? A simple, purely vegetable product as old as you are: plain Castoria. A few drops of Castoria will settle all uneasiness in a jiffy. Will dispel colic or ward off constipation; and just as surely check diarrhea. In real sickness, call a physician. But many physicians urge only Castoria for those little childish disorders that need nothing more. You need never be afraid to give pure Castoria. It is safe and perfectly harmless, for it contains no paregoric, no opiates, no dope of any kind. At least, this is true of the genuine Fletcher's Castoria—and that is the kind doctors tell you always to buy. Fletcher's Castoria is fine for any child. All children love to take it. Delicious tasting, and as good as it tastes. Just look for the Fletcher signature on the package and you will know you have the genuine and pure Castoria. *SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

Toughest of Old Hang-On Coughs Go

Why send a boy to do man's work? Sweet, sugary cough syrups may help a simple cough, but when you are travelling along towards the cemetery with a stubborn tight old cough that lingers on and on with the most persistent devilishness then you need a REAL cough medicine—and the real out destroyer of tough old weakening coughs is Broncholine Emulsion.

The cough may be so tantalizing that you can't sleep nights and your days may be filled with racking torture, yet that's just the kind of a

Solons Feared Ordinance Would Decrease Value of Vacant Property in Midland Avenue.

After considerable discussion of the advisability of the measure, Steel City solons last night voted to table an ordinance making it unlawful to cut the curbing in Midland avenue.

The ordinance was fostered by W. I. McInerney, chairman of the streets and lighting committee, who opposed granting a recent permit.

Solicitor Richard S. Holt, Beaver, pointed out that such an ordinance might decrease value of vacant property in Midland avenue.

Ordinance fixing salaries of borough employees at the same figures those in effect last year passed, when the rules were suspended to place the measure on final reading.

Preparatory to letting of bids for the borough's portion of the expense of the Fairview road improvement, two resolutions were adopted to request quarter sessions court to permit widening and straightening of the road and the extension of Wood lane. Bids will be asked about February 28, when the state will advertise its share of the project.

Rice avenue, named after a former leading citizen of the Steel City, but known as Virginia avenue for more than five years, will receive an official title to the latter name when council adopts the ordinance which passed on its first reading last night.

Acting on the recommendations of the police committee and Chief William M. Fox, solons authorized the purchase of seven .38 calibre Colt revolvers for the police department.

Bonds of Richard S. Holt, solicitor; W. L. Curtis, street commissioner; Mrs. C. K. O'Hara, city clerk, and W. C. True, member of board of health, were accepted.

Finance and purchase committee, headed by O. L. Pringle, was instructed to examine borough insurance policies with a view to making renewals Employees' liability policies expire February 1.

Report of Homer Coffin, retiring borough treasurer, was accepted.

Council was notified that the state highway department plans erection of signs warning motorists of danger of slides at Cook's Ferry. Erection of the signs is in line with request made recently by council.

LINDY LIKED IT — SO WILL YOU

AMERICA'S foremost aviators, after extensive tests, find gasoline produced from California crude to be their first choice in selecting of motor fuels.

They must have a gasoline that will give maximum motor efficiency—human life is in the balance—a dependable fuel must be provided.

They are aware of the fact that it was this gasoline that "Lindy" choose as fuel for "The Spirit of St. Louis" as they braved the waters of the Atlantic in their history-making flight to Paris.

A great tribute to California gasolines—of which

REVEAL CLASH OF PERSHING, WILSON ON WAR

Late President Crossed Plan of General, Claim.

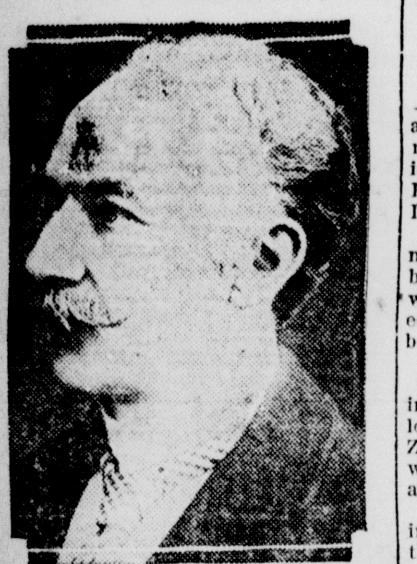

Wires Were Hot Backstage Story of Western Front in Magazine.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Military and diplomatic circles were stirred today by revelations of a sharp telegraphic exchange between President Wilson and General John J. Pershing, commander in chief of the American expeditionary forces, during a critical phase of the decisive western front struggle in the World war.

The backstage story of Pershing's uphill struggle for independent American field units, as recited in the February Cosmopolitan magazine, by Brigadier General Henry J. Rielly, has already been placed in the official archives of the war college's historical office, where the official army history of the World war is being written.

THOMAS HARDY, NOVELIST, DIES

Body Will be Buried in English Village.

DORCHESTER, England, Jan. 12.—Thomas Hardy, noted English novelist, who died last night, will be buried in the family vault at Stinsford, a little village near Dorchester, it was understood today. It is known that the writer expressed the wish that his body be interred there amid the scenes he loved so well.

and reservations should be made immediately. The committee in charge is made up of H. D. Hoffman, W. O. Bloom, J. A. Anderson, M. J. Newman, L. W. Smith and W. B. Louthan.

Touring United States. Count von Luckner who is now making a tour of the United States following visits in Australia and New Zealand, will be accompanied by his wife, Countess von Luckner, who will also be a guest at the banquet.

Von Luckner will tell of his amazing exploits. He was commander of the "Seeadler," an antiquated American vessel captured by the Germans during the war and later turned over to him to run the triple blockade following the battle of Jutland. The ship was fitted up to withstand the rigors of most severe weather.

During a terrible hurricane on December 21, 1916, flying the Norwegian flag, Count von Luckner embarked from Germany out into the North sea, skirted the coast of Norway and thence on up toward Iceland; from there he followed a course toward Greenland and thence down the Atlantic around the west coast of Africa. Then the count sailed around South America through the central waters of the southern Atlantic, around the Horn, and back up the west coast. From here he plunked into the heart of the South seas, finally reaching Samoa and then off toward New Zealand. The sixteen months' trip covered 40,000 miles.

Fitted Ship as Norwegian Vessel. "The Seeadler" carried an anti-aircraft cannon that could not possibly have been fired had it been necessary to do so. It was used only to "bluff" and the count certainly bluffed successfully.

He fitted his ship as a Norwegian vessel. In his cabin were pictures of the king and queen of Norway, the Norwegian language was spoken, Norwegian books were in the library and he even had a phonograph with a Norwegian record of the popular war song "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

His ship, under suspicion many times, was finally captured by the British and the same day recaptured as the British officers were seated in the count's dining room eating their dinner. Large juicy steaks had just been served, when suddenly the walls of the cabin receded and the British officers found themselves looking in to the guns of the count and his men. The count calmly announced: "I am sorry, gentlemen, but I am afraid I will have to take back my ship."

After an incredible mad cruise, "The Seeadler" was wrecked on the coral reefs of the South Sea Islands. The count is a born actor, a giant of a man, with a rare gift of patois, which has been heightened by his life at sea. He is vigorously expressive, full of mimicry and intensely dramatic in the recital of his absorbing adventures before the mast.

DEATH ROLL

Zook Funeral Services. Funeral services for Mrs. Mary A. Dimt, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—In anticipation of a decline in the volume of brokers' loans to be shown in the weekly report of the reserve board today, and in response to further short-covering and speculative buying of the industrial and specialty stocks, prices moved upward spiritedly in the first period. (Greene Cananea, Radio, International Nickel and other speculative leaders advanced from 1 to 6 points, and numerous fractional gains were recorded in the active steel, motor, copper and oil stocks.

Bullish forces in the financial district called attention to the enlarging backlog of forward orders for steel, as revealed in the monthly tonnage report of the steel corporation. December's gain of 518,000 tons was the largest in more than a year, and buying demand is expected to extend to a wide range of important industries this year. Oil and copper companies with Mexican properties will benefit by the change of heart of the Mexican government leaders, and the general stabilization of the oil industry is in prospect.

Houston led the oils, with a 4-point jump to 151 1/2; Marland and the Pan-Americans were firm. Radio sold in large volume between 100 and 101; General Motors and U. S. Steel gained more than a point in the first half hour, and most of the low-priced motor stocks added fractionally to market values.

DOVER "BLUE LAW" LEADERS LOSE BATTLE

Grand Jury Fails to Indict Theatre Owners.

FIGHT GOES ON

Sunday Observance Forces Demand Action.

DOVER, O., Jan. 12.—Sunday observance forces suffered their first defeat in the "Blue Law" controversy which has been in progress here since Nov. 13, when the Tuscarawas county grand jury reported today, and refused to indict three Dover motion picture theatre proprietors for operating on Sunday.

George Chrest, Roscoe Sedell and Chester Huprich had been bound over to the grand jury for violating the city ordinance against Sunday entertainments. Joe Gephart, one of Chrest's operators, was also charged, but the grand jury "no billed" all of the accusations.

The next step is a hearing in Justice Cletus Weaver's court, set for next Friday afternoon. The three movie men must answer to charges of violating the state "habitual offender" act, since they have operated their shows on Sunday a number of times during the last month.

Justice Weaver is expected to submit the cases to probate court. Conviction of the "habitual offender" charge carries a penitentiary sentence and church people have announced that they will ask the most drastic action possible.

WILBUR REVEALS NAVY'S PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The navy's proposed $725,000,000 building project is only the beginning of a 20-year program costing eventually $3,360,000,000. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur told the house naval affairs committee.

The program, he said, is necessary if America is to go into battle on even terms with an enemy.

Ruth, Judd Await Chair

Warden to Decide. In view of the Ottinger decision, it was reported, at the capital that Warden Lawes, later in the day, would issue a statement saying whether he would carry out his original intention of sending Mrs. Snyder and Gray to their death tonight.

"It will be up to Warden Lawes to say whether Mrs. Snyder and Gray are to die in the chair tonight," Ottinger declared.

By James L. Kilgallen.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy, when informed in open court today that Attorney General Albert Ottinger had decided to request him to vacate his order of last night staying the execution of Ruth Snyder, indicated that he would not comply with the request.

"I don't care what Ottinger says," the justice remarked, and continued examining some papers on his desk. He would make no further comment.

The attorney general, in Albany, had indicated that if Justice Levy did not vacate the stay, the execution could take place anyway, if the order was held illegal. He said he would not formally announce his decision, however, until Levy had been given an opportunity to act on his request.

Warden May Delay Execution.

Justice Levy's order was granted at the request of Mrs. Snyder's counsel, Attorney Edgar Hazleton, on the ground that she was an important witness in a civil suit over the $95,000 life insurance which, it was alleged, Mrs. Snyder took out on the life of her husband, Albert Snyder, a few months before he was brutally murdered in his Queens county home.

Attorney General Ottinger pointed out, however, that should an opinion be handed down declaring Justice Levy's order illegal, there was nothing to prevent Warden Lawes from delaying the execution of both Mrs. Snyder and her former lover, Henry Judd Gray, until later in the week if he desired.

Gray Appeals to Governor. Governor Smith was appealed to today "in simple justice" to save Judd Gray from the chair tonight—now that Justice Levy has granted Mrs. Snyder a stay.

Samuel L. Miller, of Gray's counsel, sent the following telegram to the governor, who is stopping at the Biltmore hotel:

"We pray that in simple justice you grant a reprieve to Henry Judd Gray for a period covering the time in which the life of Ruth Brown Snyder may be spared by the court."

"It would be frightfully unfair to permit any advantage to be given Ruth Brown Snyder to enjoy the additional days of life which Henry Judd Gray could not also enjoy."

A copy of the telegram was also sent to Warden Lawes at Sing Sing. Illegal, Hints Ottinger.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Attorney General Albert Ottinger announced shortly before noon today that he had virtually reached a decision that the order granted by Supreme Court Justice Levy, staying the execution of Mrs. Ruth Snyder, which had been set for 11 o'clock tonight, was illegal and should be disregarded.

The attorney general revealed that one of his New York city deputies was now on his way to see Justice Levy and ask him to vacate the order immediately.

COUNTESS ONCE RAN FASHION SHOP

Countess Marie Von Prittwitz, wife of the new German ambassador to the United States, was the first member of the German nobility to go in for earning her own living. She opened a modiste shop in Berlin after her father had been killed in action, and there some years later, she met the Count. The Countess is one of the most beautiful women in the diplomatic set.

OCEAN FLYER SEEKS RECORD

Chamberlain Attempts to Break Endurance Mark.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Clarence Chamberlain, trans-Atlantic hero, and Rogers Williams, commercial aviator, took off here today at 10:30 a. m. in a new attempt to break the endurance flight record, now held in Germany.

The two aviators made an unsuccessful effort yesterday to regain the record for America. The present record is 52 hours 22 minutes and 31 seconds. Chamberlain was at the controls of the Bellanca monoplane, which is owned by A. R. Martine, New York banker. The hop-off came after a delay caused by a leaky pump valve.

SPEED JUSTICE, LAWYER URGES

Deputy Prosecutor Speaks at Kiwanis Luncheon.

Courts of the country were called upon to speed up criminal cases as a means of checking the alarming increase in crimes by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John E. Bauknecht, East Palestine, in an address on "Law Enforcement" at today's luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club in the Travelers' Hotel grill, East Fourth street.

Bauknecht traced the increase in crime particularly during the last 14 years, and quoted figures showing 6,078 persons to be confined in Ohio's penal institutions at the end of 1926. He declared that the number of prisoners admitted from 1912 to 1926 was about one half of the number admitted during the previous 95-year period.

He asserted that of the 5,899 persons indicted for homicide during the same period, but 2,111 were convicted. Of this number 1912 were imprisoned and 73 paid the death penalty. He claimed that the figures for Columbiana county were somewhat better than those for the entire state.

Remedies for the situation, Bauknecht said, were for the newspapers to give publicity to the results of crime, passage of hygienic marriage laws and the speeding up of justice in the courts.

HOUSTON SEEKS DEMS' MEETING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—A new and determined bid for the Democratic national convention was put forward today by Houston, Tex., through Jesse Jones, treasurer of the national committee.

Jones announced he would submit a bid of $200,000; within $50,000 of the sum San Francisco has bid. Houston's offer made a distinct impression upon those committee members who regard San Francisco, the leading bidder, as too remote from the center of the nation.

THE moral of that is plain, protect American workers from competition with underpaid foreign labor, and American manufacturers from competition with foreign manufacture that can hire such cheap labor and MAKE IT ILLEGAL FOR THIS COUNTRY TO BUY CHEAP SUPPLIES OF ANY KIND, IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES, PRODUCED BY CHEAP FOREIGN LABOR.

Edison Goes To Florida. NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 12.—Thomas A. Edison left here for his winter home in Fort Myers, Florida, today in his private car.

KNIFE WIELDED AS MAN ATTACKS OHIO GIRLS

Columbus Victims' Necks and Shoulders Slashed.

ASSAILANT FLEES

Police Hint Mistaken Identity Behind Mystery.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 12.—Police today were investigating attacks on two young girls who were wounded when set upon by a man with a knife, in the west end of town last night.

The victims are Thelma Weaver, 13, and Lula Thompson, 16. They were attacked, on separate occasions, while walking in West End streets. Both said their assailant came from behind and slashed at their necks and shoulders with a razor or knife.

Police believe the attacks rest on a case of mistaken identity. Mrs. Jack Carpenter, recently separated from her husband, told detectives that he visited her several days ago and that when she refused to live with him he drew a knife and cut part of her clothing away before she could escape.

Since both attacks were in the vicinity of the Carpenter home and both victims are of much the same size and appearance as Mrs. Carpenter, authorities today scouted the idea that a "ripper" is at large in the west end. Carpenter was arrested and is held for investigation.

LABORER HELD AFTER CUTTING

Nab Renzo McDole Following Affray Near Fairview.

Renzo McDole, 48, laborer for the Crucible Steel company, Midland, was lodged in the Midland jail today upon an affidavit signed by Frank Dawson, 30, carpenter, charging aggravated assault and battery as a result of a cutting affray at the McDole home, about a mile south of Fairview, at 8 o'clock last night.

Dawson, suffering from a wound in the back, is in the Rochester General hospital, where he was taken in the Dennis ambulance last night. His condition is not believed to be serious.

Dawson, it is claimed, went to the McDole home to complain about the alleged practice of the McDole children throwing stones on a roadway which he is forced to travel with his automobile. He alleged that McDole struck him, then attacked him with a knife. The knife wound was dressed by Dr. L. L. Hunter, Midland.

McDole was arrested by Constable P. P. Gallagher. He will be given a hearing before Justice J. P. Finnigan.

KILLS WOMAN, ENDS OWN LIFE

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Genevieve Opial, 31, was shot and instantly killed in a passageway adjoining her home here today by her brother-in-law, Sebastian Rusin, 51, who then shot and killed himself. Domestic discord was attributed to the murder and suicide, according to police.

Flaw Free 17 Alleged Floggers.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 12.—Seventeen men who were scheduled to go on trial in superior court here today, charged with the flogging of Purvis Woods and Ernie Brewer, Holly Springs youths, stood already freed when court convened.

After a special venire of 50 men had been summoned for the trial, Solicitor Leon S. Brassfield discovered a flaw in the indictment returned against the men last month, which charged them with committing a misdemeanor rather than a felony.

Fire Damages Motor Truck.

Motor truck owned by the Liverpool Produce company was damaged by fire, which developed in the cab while the truck was being filled with gasoline at the Ohio Valley Oil company's filling station, St. Clair avenue and Broadway, yesterday afternoon. The fire is said to have been started when the driver of the truck struck a match to light a cigarette. Firemen from the Central station extinguished the blaze with chemicals.

The new Sydney-Broken Hill railroad in New South Wales is 699 miles long, and is the longest main-trunk railway in that country.

Judge Diehl was born at Homeworth.

Piano for County Home.

A fund of $50 has been contributed among residents of Centre township for the purpose of purchasing a piano for use at the county home. The instrument is to be used in the regular church service held at the institution each Sunday. The commissioners will pay the balance of the cost of the piano, according to a resolution that has been placed on the record.

DIVORCE SUITS FILED IN COURT

Effie A. Burns, of East Palestine, filed suit in the common pleas court Tuesday against Pete Burns, who is now living at Elton, O., asking that he be granted a divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty.

Mike Winkler, of Salem, has brought action in court seeking a divorce from his wife, Eleanor M. Winkler, charging her with gross neglect of duty and unfaithfulness. They were married on May 7, 1921 in Lisbon. The defendant is living in Cleveland.

Seeks Judgment.

W. J. Woodward of Letonia, wants the court to give him judgment against Harry Ready of that village for $52.13 which he claims is due on an account for work and labor performed and material furnished to the defendant.

Woman Given Divorce.

Roxanna Wood Michaels, of Lisbon, was granted a divorce in court Tuesday from Robert Michaels on grounds of gross neglect of duty. They were married September 1, 1884 in North Carolina. Mrs. Michaels told the court that her husband had failed to provide for her for the past 30 years.

Suit Instituted.

Jack Blackstone has brought action in the common pleas court against The Salem Finance & Discount company and Salem Motor company in which he asks judgment for $335.72. The amount is said to be due on notes given in an automobile deal.

Damage Suit Filed.

Dr. H. W. Bennett of Lisbon, has been sued in the common pleas court by A. L. Denkhous of Lisbon, for $207.92 for the damage done to a truck owned by the plaintiff on the Canton hill just west of Lisbon on the morning of November 25th last.

County Surveyor Kirk Submits Road Report

More Than 30 Miles of
New Work Completed
Last Year — Financed by Federal, State and County Funds.

A detailed report filed with the county commissioners by County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk reveals the completion of 235.207 miles of improved highways in Columbiana county. Of this mileage, 30.14 miles of new road were finished during 1927 and 31.90 miles of grading done the same year, this being at a cost of $1,523,006.84.

This road improvement program was financed by county, state and federal funds.

At the close of 1926, there were 80,246 miles of brick highways in the county and 70,52 miles of concrete. There was 117 miles of asphalt concrete and 141 miles of Wilburite surfacing. Bituminous macadam roads totaled 32,875 miles and water bound macadam roads showed a mileage of 17,696. There is but 1.15 miles of gravel road in the county.

In the contracts awarded and completed during 1927 were several large bridge projects, the major bridges being erected on the Williamsport section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road.

The complete record of road construction work in this county for 1927 has been detailed as follows:

Cannon Mill bridge, H. C. Armstrong, contractor, type concrete, length 24 feet, contract price $10,166.70 and financed by federal, state and county funds.

Little Girl Had Rash Three Years Cuticura Healed

"When my little girl was a month old I noticed a red rash on her face. Soon her body was covered, and her skin had become very dry. Later it spread to her arms and legs and scales formed on her face. It itched badly and she would scratch the back of her neck until it would bleed. "She had the trouble three years when my sister-in-law advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I purchased some and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Frank Strickland, 775 Eleanor St., N. E., Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 21, 1927.

Keep your skin clear by using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for daily toilet purposes. Touch pimples and itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Cuticura Talcum is unexcelled in purity.

Thin Folks! Here's 5 Pounds of Solid Flesh or Money Back

Underweight means your vitality is under par. Your strength and energy below normal, so no wonder if you are thin, scrawny with sunken chest and hollows in your cheeks you always feel down in the month, discouraged and rundown in health.

There isn't an underweight man or woman on earth who wouldn't feel better if their weight was what it should be.

That's why every man and woman whose bones are scantily covered and who want to gain in health and have an attractive figure should take advantage of McCoy's offer.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price. The name McCoy Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at any drug store in America.

BLOOD PRESSURE 200

Watch your blood pressure! If it's 180 or 200 instead of 120, it's a sign to be careful. High blood pressure cuts years off one's life. Heart palpitation, dizziness and difficulty are symptoms of high blood pressure, the result of our modern abnormal habits of life which put too great a strain upon the liver.

The liver becoming sluggish fails to cleanse the blood of the toxic poisons formed in food waste, which then permeate the whole system, affecting heart, blood pressure and blood vessels. The liver needs a little help occasionally. Nothing better for this, as medical men know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to real health.

Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few soon tell.

Motherhood

May be made a joy!

"Mother's Friend" is a comfort to expectant mothers. Externally applied, it relieves prenatal distress by relaxing tight tissues and muscles. Its daily use makes the skin soft and pliable.

"I am proud of Mother's Friend. It saved my life," writes Mrs. Thos. Sherosky, Leechburg, Pa. "My 9 1/2 pound baby boy was born a few minutes before the doctor came, and I didn't know I had him."

Start using "Mother's Friend" tonight! It is sold by all drug stores. Write for free booklet on "Things to Know Before Baby Comes" (sent in plain envelope).

THRILLS MARK "THE GORILLA"

Thousand Laughs, Too,
Ceramic.

For thrills, chills and a thousand laughs see "The Gorilla," the mystery comedy melodrama that opened at the Ceramic theatre last night, with Charlie Murray and Fred Kelsey featured as the two demon sleuths, Mulligan and Garrity. "The Gorilla," written by Ralph Spence as a stage play, in its screen version is one of the fastest, spookiest thrillers to be seen here in some time. "The Gorilla" himself is a weird, menacing looking ape, and every time he appears the crowds shriek as if he were right in the audience.

Anyone who has seen the stage play will recognize the cast of players and the story plot—except the ending. That has been changed so that a complete surprise is sprung when the final scene is enacted.

The new screen team of Murray and Kelsey live up to their advance notices. They make a typical pair of detectives who suspect everyone in the place but themselves.

Alfred Santell, the director, is to be commended on his clever handling of a difficult story. It is closely knit and full of action. The photography is eerie and weird and proves again that a mystery angle can be carried out with all the thrills, without pistol shots, screams and other sounds usually found in a play of this type.

Situations are built upon situations, until almost everyone is implicated—also the gorilla.

An excellent cast, including Alice Day, Tully Marshall, Claude Gillingwater, Walter Pidgeon, Gaston Glass, Brooks Benedict, Aggie Herring and Syd. Crossly, make up the inhabitants of the mystery house. Edward Small, of Asher, Small and Roers, presents "The Gorilla" for First National.

In spite of a good wheat crop in Portugal during the past season the government has authorized the importation of 37,500 metric tons of the grain.

GOVERNOR GORE IN SENATE RACE

Executive is Candidate for Seat Now Held by M. M. Neely.

Governor Howard M. Gore yesterday announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the United States senate.

The first candidate in the field for the seat now held by Senator M. M. Neely, Democrat, his announcement was expected to be followed shortly by statements from other candidates for major offices at the state wide primary on May 29, when a complete list of state officers as well as a United States senator, all congressmen and both houses of the legislature will be nominated by the various political parties.

Gore's term as governor will expire in March, 1929. W. G. Conley and Dr. A. C. Van Dine, Kanawha county member of the house of delegates, are already in the field for the Republican nomination to succeed him.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

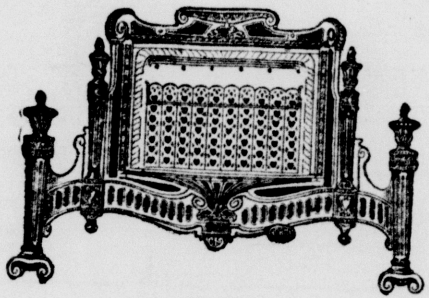

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

MISSION WORKER TO PREACH HERE

Rev. A. M. Laing, missionary worker for the past eight years in India, will preach at the morning and evening services Sunday in the First United Presbyterian church.

He comes as candidate for the pastorate made vacant by the resignation of Rev. W. J. H. McKnight.

Lodge Officers Installed. Officers were installed by Rock Springs Lodge, No. 161, in the I. O. O. F. K. of P. hall on Tuesday night. The work was in charge of Mrs. Anna Shaw, deputy president. Coverdish supper was served during the evening.

Swearingin Funeral Services. Funeral services for Mrs. Cinderella A. Swearingin, 78, widow of S. M. Swearingin, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 in the home, 1131 Carolina avenue, in charge of Rev. William T. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in Locust Hill cemetery. Friends may view the body tonight.

SPECIAL MUSIC FOR MEETING

Evangelist George S. Baggett, of Liverpool, N. Y., spoke last night at the revival services in the First Methodist Episcopal church. His topic was "The Golden Calf." His subject tonight will be: "The Unpardonable Sin."

Special music will be rendered tomorrow night by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cox and Mr. and Mrs. William Mautz of East Liverpool.

Parish Meeting Scheduled. Annual parish meeting of St. Stephen's Episcopal church will be held tomorrow night. Social hour at which refreshments will be served will follow the business session.

Business Men to Meet. Business Men's association will meet this evening in the Stewart hall, Third and Carolina avenue. Social hour will be held in connection with the session.

REVIVAL MEETS DRAW LARGELY

Large crowd attended services last night in the First Christian church at which the sermon was given by the pastor, Rev. L. A. Britton, his topic was "The Boy That Stayed Home." His subject tonight will be: "A Bunch of Keys."

Meetings will continue for the next two weeks.

Lodges Plan Dance. Plans have been completed for a dance to be held Saturday night in the I. O. O. F. K. of P. hall, Fifth street and Carolina avenue. The affair will be under the joint auspices of both lodges.

REV. T. J. LOGAN AT SHOP MEET

Evangelistic Services Held at Potters' Supply Plant.

Rev. Thomas J. Logan, D. D., Meadville, Pa., evangelist, Rev. Howard Parry, Alliance song leader, and Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted a noon hour shop meet at the Potters' Supply company's plant yesterday.

Rev. Parry rendered Gypsy Smith's gospel hymn, "Out of the Depths," and led the singing. Rev. Logan spoke to the workers.

Rev. Logan preached on "The Mantle of Power" at the Baptist church last night, in which he told the story of Elijah and Elisha. Stressing the necessity of burning the plow and turning to the Lord's work, he referred to the falling of the mantle of God's power on Evan Roberts of Wales, D. L. Moody and others. A male quartet sang "Out of the Bondage of Sin," while Rev. Parry favored with a number by Homer Bartlett, "Oh, Lord Be Merciful."

A children's service was held yesterday afternoon when a Boosters' club was organized. Boys are pitted against the girls in a contest which will be conducted during the revival campaign.

Rev. Parry returned to his home in Alliance today in order to attend the annual meeting of his congregation which will be held tonight. The Thursday evening service will be in charge of Revs. Logan and O'Brien.

Radio programs are being broadcast weekly from Melbourne, Australia, to Europe.

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles.

NOTE—It would be illegal to publish this if not true.

Waking Up Nights

For Bladder Relief Is Nature's Warning "Danger Ahead" Quick Action Necessary.

Herbert Crawford, Ghent, Ky., says in his own paper, the Carrollton Democrat: "I was relieved of getting up 10 to 12 times each night and of the burning feeling with irritated bladder (Keller Formula). It worked wonders for me. Will gladly tell by experience to anyone."

Lithiated Buba (Keller Formula) acts on the bladder as upon salts do on the bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves irritation that causes "getting up nights." The tablets cost 25 each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio or locally at J. D. Holliday, Druggist.

HORNSBY DEAL STOPS THREATENED RUPTURE

McGraw-Stoneham Split Averted as Second Baseman Goes to Braves, Critics Say; Move to Aid Club Harmony.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—A twenty-thousand-mile front in six or eight of the explanations of that amazing business.

1. That a threatened break between McGraw and Stoneham, which would have resulted in Rogers Hornsby stepping in as manager of the Giants, had been averted and that, in consequence, Hornsby had to take himself hence.

2. That Hornsby's dominating personality had resulted in disunion on the ball club and that McGraw had to trade him to restore harmony.

3. That Hornsby's admitted flair for gambling on the races had resulted in other players with the club becoming addicts and that too many of them were interested in what happened in the third race at Pimlico to do the club any particular good.

Of course, the backstairs loungers, inspired by the memory of what had gone before in baseball, immediately saw in Hornsby's passing to Boston a possible hint of something beneath the surface of the deal but, seemingly or at least as far as the eye could reach, Hornsby wasn't wanted by a man for whom he just had won a world's championship. Today, he had been passed along by another who, previous to 1927, had spent the greater part of his declining years wishing that Hornsby was with his ball club.

HURRIED DEAL SUPPORTS THEORY

Color is lent to the theory of a threatened break by the fact that Hornsby deal apparently was made in some haste. The Giants held up the news for some six hours in order to give Judge Fuchs time to return to Boston and receive three rousing cheers. If they hadn't been in a hurry, they would have recollected that the news could have been withheld long enough for Fuchs to get to Honolulu.

It, therefore, seems reasonably certain that quick action had been demanded and obtained. Why was this done? Well, not because Hornsby had ruffled the feelings of a few Giant players last summer. If that was too much for the management, it could have disposed of the situation at its leisure. And for a similar reason, it may be imagined that Hornsby's alleged influence on the gambling inclinations of other players was deemed no particular cause for haste.

But if Messrs. Stoneham and McGraw suddenly decided that they were great little pals after all, then it might be expected that matters concerning Hornsby would come to a head immediately, if only as a guarantee of mutual admiration between the two heads of the outfit.

Of course, the two remaining explanations

He would seem to be the kind of four hour inquiry, conducted on our principal cities, into the labyrinth after today seemed to have narrowed iness down to the following explanations.

Taking the three explanations in the order of their plausibility, we can first consider the so-called threat of a break between the Giant owner that might have resulted in Hornsby becoming manager. The stand out consideration here involves the question of why Stoneham had to wait until this late date to quit a report that Hornsby was to take over the Giants. The report was in circulation during the greater part of last summer and, if Charley and John then were the little playmates they now profess to be, what would be more natural than that either or both should deny the Hornsby rumor at its inception?

That would have fixed everything, it seems to me, and the Giants still might have had their star hitter and field leader.

But if the alleged breach actually existed and now has been healed, what might the man most deeply concerned be expected to do? He would get hurriedly rid of the player whose existence threatened his status.

nations may have been contributing factors in the trade. It was openly declared that Hornsby and Burleigh Grimes had engaged in a club house brawl last summer. In a statement from Chicago, Freddy Lindstrom only names Grimes as no friend of Hornsby's, but also himself and Eddie Roush. In consequence, if one is having trouble with at least three others, the natural conclusion to be reached by any manager is that it is exactly three times as easy to get rid of one man as it is the three others.

Lindstrom also indicated that there were pro-Hornsby and anti-Hornsby elements on the club. The former, in its support of the star, might have carried its admiration all the way to the third race at Pimlico or what-had-they. The Giants, therefore, may have decided that they would do well to part company with the source of this alleged inspiration, merely to keep the boys' minds off the race track and on the ball field.

There is a fourth explanation but I can see no logic in it. It has to do with syndicate baseball. If you can tell me why the Giants would want to tear down their ball club in the rather forlorn hope of helping another, then I will agree that the dual ownership idea is a perfectly sound theory.

Face Lisbon Tonight On Local Floor

Salineville-Damascus Clash in Important Game.

THEIR performance resembling somewhat their antics of last season when numerous second half rallies brought them home ahead of the opposition for frequent victories, the East Liverpool Elks of the county league last night defeated the Salem Studebakers, 33 to 35, and today are back on top of the race with a half-game margin over Salineville.

Tonight's games will have an important bearing on the disposition of the first half championship with the three leading teams all in action.

While the Elks are slated to clash with Lisbon on the local court and are logical favorites to win, the big scene will take place out at Salineville when Tommy Cartwright's Kiwanians, still very much in the fight for the half title, will take on the Damascus Quakers. The Quakers have been eliminated from consideration as title winners for the first half, unless each of the two pace setters, East Liverpool and Salineville, should be beaten once again. In that event a triple tie would be almost a certainty.

A victory for Damascus over Salineville, however, would clear the path to the halfway championship and make certain a part in the final title play-off for the Elks, provided Adam's outfit maintains the stride it has struck the last few weeks.

The Elks looked the part of a second-best bet in the first half of last night's clash at Salem when the Studebakers had registered a 17 to 9 lead. Two field goals by Wilson, one by Canne and another by McConville, plus Canne's single foul represented the East Liverpool scoring in the first half. The Motors ran up nine points in the opening period and the Elks two. The visitors accounted for seven in the second quarter but the Studebakers kept in the lead by collecting eight.

However, the course of the game began to turn in the third period and as the battle waxed warmer, East Liverpool points began to accumulate faster. Pusey banged the hoop for five two-pointers in the last two quarters, while Wilson and Canne collected three apiece.

The Elks' star center was banished to the showers in the final period after having accumulated his complete quota of personal fouls. Captain Anderson had started the game as guard, but toward the close of the first quarter left in favor of Crawford. When Canne was relieved of his responsibilities at the pivot post, Crawford was shifted to replace him and Anderson went back on his regular defense job. Grafton, Salem forward, was also chased from the court by Referee Alexander who called them closely and frequently on both sides. Thirteen personal fouls were distributed among the six Antler players who took part, while 11 were charged to the Salemites.

The Lisbon New Fords will clash with the Pri Deltas, of East Liverpool, in the preliminary at 7:15.

"I would prefer not to dwell upon contract matters. Judge Fuchs is a very good friend of mine and I know there will be no difficulties. Whether I demand a contract for two years or five years with Boston should not interest the public. That is a private matter."

It was suggested to the Rajah that possibly he had been assigned to Boston with a view to bolstering up attendance at games in the spacious Braves' field, one of the finest parks in the world. The demon fence buster was disinclined to talk on this subject.

Highs Drill For Week's Court Tilts

Play Salem Friday, Wellsville Saturday, Both Here.

UNDISCOURAGED by their defeat at the hands of Coach Weltner's Akron South basketball team which, by the way, is one of the best school fives that has paraded its skill on the local court for a long time, high school cagers are turning their attention to week-end engagements with Salem and Wellsville, two ancient foes.

Both of the contests are scheduled for the local floor and each should bring a full night's basketball entertainment for followers of the Blue and White.

Springer will bring his Salem lads here tomorrow night and Wellsville will be here on Saturday.

Return games, of course, will be played with both schools on their courts.

Faults, if any, observed in the Akron encounter, have been stressed in the local team's practice work this week and Hurst is confident that his team will get back into its winning stride, although neither of the approaching contests can be considered easy.

PETTY RECEIVES BIG PAY RAISE

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Jesse Petty, crack southpaw, is the first member of the Brooklyn Robins to sign a 1928 contract. It is reported that his contract calls for $15,000, an increase of $5,000.

None of the other regulars has signed. Dazzy Vance, whose $16,000 contract expired last season, probably will get a raise.

BOWLING TEAMS LEAVE ENGLAND

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Jan. 12.—An English bowling team, composed of 15 members, sailed for New York today on the liner Mont Royal for a series of matches for the American international cup. The games will be played in California. According to present plans, the English bowlers will reach Pasadena on January 28. The American teams will be selected by the California Bowling association.

COCHRAN STILL TRAILS SCHAEFER

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Although Welker Cochran defeated Jake Schaefer, 478 to 390, in the sixth block of their 3,600 point 18.1 balkline billiard match here last night, he is still trailing the Chicagoan by a total score of 1,515 to 1,800. Cochran's highest run was 82, Schaefer's 76.

Schaefer won the fifth block, 300 to 238.

AKRON IS VICTOR OVER B. & W. FIVE

BEREA, O., Jan. 12.—Akron university defeated Baldwin-Wallace in Ohio conference basketball here last night, by a score of 40 to 30.

After fighting hard through most of the game, the Baldwin-Wallace players broke down during the last five minutes of play.

Hall was chief scorer for Akron, while Schwieger starred for the losers.

Sharkey Is Sure He'll Lick Heeney

Appears to be in Good Condition for Friday Fight.

By Sid Mercer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—A belated official survey of the anatomy of Jack Sharkey is being made today by Drs. William Walker and Joseph Baldwin, of the New York state athletic commission, to determine whether a recent injury to his left hand or the pounding he received from Jack Dempsey last summer will seriously handicap him in his important engagement with Tom Heeney tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden.

Inasmuch as Sharkey easily passed a similar test in Boston this week and has been socking his sparring partners with vicious abandon for the past ten days, the local board does not anticipate that anything but minor flaws will be found in his physical armor.

Sharkey's outward appearance certainly does not indicate that he is a flimsy rule. Indeed he appears to be enjoying the best of health. He is the same old cocky, confident soldier of fortune with apparently not a worry on his mind and he is broadcasting on all wave lengths that he will thoroughly eliminate Mr. Heeney tomorrow evening.

"A fine fellow," says Jack of Tom, "and a good fighter but not a great one in my estimation. I never had any doubt about winning this one. It's silly to say I ever tried to duck him. I wasn't afraid of Dempsey and I certainly can't see where Heeney's record should inspire fear. I don't think it will even be close."

Sharkey will loosen up at a local gymnasium late this afternoon, but of course will do no more boxing. He will weigh in at about 193 pounds.

Heeney also tossed aside the sixteen-ounce gloves yesterday after topping a half hour workout by three fast rounds against George Courtney, middleweight contender and Tom's great pal.

Heeney will weigh about 196 for Sharkey. He exhibited no symptoms of staleness yesterday. At no time did he attempt to rest on the ropes or slow Courtney down by holding.

Sharkey continues to rule a strong favorite and is expected to be better than 2 to 1 at post time. The betting fraternity figures Sharkey to outglop and outbox the New Zealander but not to stop him. The seat sale is booming along and Tex Rickard now thinks the gate will close to the record of $183,000 net established by Maloney and Delaney last winter.

Carpentier Wins In Steubenville Scrap

Three of the probable participants in the Eagles' next fight show on Thursday January 28, took part in the Steubenville glove program last night. Two of the three came off with clean-cut victories and while the decision went against the third, a large number of fans ruled the other way.

U. S. Carpentier, of Pittsburgh, junior lightweight, scored an eight-round triumph over Johnny Carpentier, of Columbus, in the main bout. U. S. Carpentier is slated to fight Johnny Kusie, of Philadelphia, in the F. O. E. feature event.

But Freddie Boylestein, Pittsburgh, billed as a semi-finalist here, aroused the enthusiasm of Matchmaker Tom McDonough who was a guest of the Steubenville promoters, in his knock-out victory over Lou Terris, of New Kensington, in the semi-windup. Boylestein dropped Terris after two minutes of milling in the opening round, exhibiting as pretty a performance as any man on the bill.

Boylestein probably will be matched here with Billy Kimm, of Columbus, who fought Johnny Brest, of Steubenville, last night. Brest was awarded the decision although he had little margin to spare, if any, according to some of the ringside habitués.

RAJAH'S OWN STORY

By Harold Johnson.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 12.—Branding as absolute lies the allegations of President Charles Stoneham that he had at any time sought to undermine John J. McGraw and gain the management of the New York Giants, Rogers Hornsby, the heavy-socking second-sacker traded Tuesday night by that club to the lowly Boston Braves, today declared emphatically that he still was in a maze over the whole transaction.

Stoneham, principal owner of the Giants, yesterday was quoted as saying Hornsby had been turned over to the Braves for Catcher Frank Hogan, a comparative rookie, and Jimmy Welsh, an average outfielder, to "avoid future conflict in the management of the Giants." Prior to this amazing statement by Stoneham the fans throughout America had entertained a number of ideas in connection with the case.

Some folks inclined to the belief that Hornsby's tendency to bet on horse races hastened his departure from Manhattan. Others had a hunch that he had been involved in bets on ball games. Then a lot of folks suspected that he had been a trouble-maker on the club, and inclined to "ride" his teammates.

I sat with the mighty fence-buster, greatest natural hitter the National league ever has produced, for more than an hour this morning in his apartment at the Forest Park hotel here. He was bombarded from all angles by a barrage of questions in the hope that he might unobscure some ray of light on the great mystery.

"McGraw had nothing to do with my dismissal from the New York club—I am convinced on that point," declared Hornsby. "We were always warmest of friends and at no time did I ever aspire to his position as manager. I never had many dealings with Stoneham, however. I am inclined to suspect, though, that some animosity on the part of James Tierney, club secretary, may have accounted for the action taken."

"Ever since the news broke Tuesday I have been swamped with telephone calls and telegrams from all parts of the country, my newspaper friends and fans, all asking me what it is all about. Place a stack of Bibles before me and I would swear a holy oath that I am at a loss to explain."

"One story is to the effect that I undertook to depose McGraw as manager. That is sheer rot. In my opinion John McGraw is the greatest baseball manager the world ever has produced. When the Giants reached Chicago on their second western invasion last season 'Mac' was called away on a scouting trip and he assembled all the other Giants, informing them in the club house that I would be in charge."

"The Giants proposed during the two periods that I handled the team as pinch-manager and while we were on the road, too. McGraw was quoted as saying that he contemplated retirement from active management of the club and that when he took this action the post he filled so long and successfully, would revert to me. I never said a thing to anybody on the subject; it all came from McGraw, so if Stoneham is attempting to create the impression I was trying to supplant McGraw, he is a liar.

"I also am accused of having indulged in fistic encounter with Burley Grimes and Eddie Roush. Mark those stories as more unwarranted lies."

"In my entire career in professional baseball I have been involved in only one dispute in which a blow was delivered and that happened to be the affair with Branch Rickey several years ago."

"There is another charge which I want to answer—that one to the effect that I carried a copy of 'Racing form' with me all the time. Never had one on my person and certainly didn't conceal one in my program at the world's series last fall while seated in a box along-side McGraw. I assured Commissioner Landis a year ago that I would have nothing to do with betting on the horses and I have lived up to that promise in every respect."

"I never bet on a ball game in my life," he said. "I have bet on horses but never on baseball. I couldn't get a kick out of that for I love to win ball games, and on the level, mark you."

"I see some of the eastern writers accuse me of being a 'welcher' on my race track wagers. That is another damnable lie. I was acquitted in speedy order by a jury that listened

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

GROUPS

Miller, professor of sociology at Ohio State university, says the existence of nations is becoming less important in world society than the unification of groups that cross-sectionalize the world. Organizations like the Rotary club and other associations which claim members from all the civilized nations are playing a great part in the preservation of world peace. Organizations of men and women which reach across national borders are the most important organizations on earth.

YOUR $220

Is your $220 in the saving bank? Equal distribution of the nation's total savings now in banks would give each person in the United States $220. At the middle of this year 26 billion dollars was reported in savings accounts. If you do not make enough to enable you, with your best effort, to make even a small savings, you had better be looking for another job. If you make enough to enable you to make a saving but don't do it through lack of will power and judgment you had better have a serious look at yourself.

THE ONCE-OVER

Owners of chain stores and other concerns which sell location at the best corners and depend on volume of sales have trained men to test locations by counting and studying the people who pass a given spot on a crowded street. These observers have to do more than count. They are supposed to know, in the study of a few moments, whether the passerby is the kind that eats lunch at a lunch counter or goes leisurely to the club. He is supposed to be able to tell whether the prospective has money to spend and whether he is likely to spend it. That takes trained observation and it's an interesting job.

Epic of the Air
by
Chas. A. Lindbergh

By Chas. A. Lindbergh.
CHAPTER V.
I had strayed over a hundred miles off my course and experienced a minor crack-up, but I departed with two hundred and fifty more dollars in my pocket than I had arrived with, besides confidence in my ability to make at least a little more than expenses by barnstorming.

The constant rains had filled the rivers to overflowing, and after leaving Maben I flew over flooded territory nearly all the way to Lake Village, Arkansas. Often the water was up to the second story windows of the farmhouses, and a forced landing at any time would have at least meant noising over.

I had installed the compass while waiting for the new propeller at Maben, and experienced no further difficulty in holding my course.

After circling Lake Village I landed in a field several miles north of town. The nearest building was a clubhouse and soon the keeper and his family had arrived beside the plane. They invited me to stay with them as long as I wished, but the keeper persistently refused to accept a flight in return for his hospitality. I carried only a handful of passengers that afternoon. The flying territory around that part of the country was fairly good and there were a number of fields available for planes to land in. Consequently, an airplane was no longer the drawing attraction that it was farther in the interior.

I staked the plane down much earlier than usual and went over to the clubhouse.

Evening came on with the clearness of a full moon and open sky. The landscape was illuminated with a soft yellow light; an ideal night for flying. I decided to see what the country looked like from the air at night and jokingly asked my host to accompany me. To my surprise, he willingly agreed. For some reason he had no fear of a night flight although I had been unable to persuade him to go up with me in the daytime. What his reaction would have been had he known that I had never flown after dark before is a matter of speculation.

We untied the plane, removed the canvas from engine and cockpit, and after a few minutes spent in warming up the motor, taxied down the field and took off for a moonlight flight down the Mississippi and over Lake Village.

Later in the evening after the ship was again securely staked to the ground and we were sitting quietly in the clubhouse my host stated that he had never spent a more enjoyable quarter of an hour in his life.

The next morning I was again heading toward Texas against a strong westerly wind which retarded the speed of the Jenny so greatly that even with my double fuel capacity it was necessary to land at Farmerville, Louisiana, to replenish my supply. From there I flew to Texarkana and landed between the stumps of the 1923 airport.

On the following morning I left Texarkana with a strong tail wind and after crossing the Ozark mountains landed near a small town in northeastern Oklahoma, where I took on a fresh supply of fuel and again headed north towards Lincoln, Nebraska.

My tanks began to run low about half way through Kansas and I picked out a hillside near Alma. After flying low and dragging the field several times I came in for a landing, but just as the wheels were about to touch the ground I discovered that it was covered with fairly large rocks half hidden in the tall grass. I opened the throttle to take off but the plane had lost too much speed for the motor to take effect and as it hooked in the rocks and grounded it looped the ship to the left but without doing serious damage. The landing gear wires were strained and about two feet of

★ COMING STARS of the MOVIES ★

Charles Rogers

You'll hear from Charles (Buddy) Rogers before long. This boy is one of the real "finds" of recent years. Just a kid, he's good looking, but not in the collar-ad way.

Rogers was originally "discovered" by no less a personage than Mary Pickford, who used him as her juvenile leading man in one of her recent pictures. That was a big opportunity, but a bigger one was around the corner—Buddy was handed one of the twin starring roles in the big special production of "Wings."

And, teamed with Richard Arlen—another 14-karat "find"—Buddy more than made good again. He's sure to be heard from, sure to land in the stellar class, sure to put Kansas on the movie map.

The rear spar on the lower left wing tip was snapped off. Nothing was broken, however, which would require immediate repairing.

The field was quite a distance from Alma, and in order to get an early start in the morning I stayed with the ship that night. During the heavy rain at Maben, Mississippi, I had constructed a hammock of heavy canvas which could be suspended under the top wing.

I tied the corners of this hammock to the upper strut fittings and crawled into the three blankets inside, which were sewn up to form a bag. Thus I spent a comfortable night.

When I arrived over the Lincoln Standard factory, and after landing on the old flying field south of town waited for the car which was sent out to bring in visiting airmen.

The remainder of the day was spent in "ground flying" with my friends in the factory. We had not been together for seven months, and the usual exchange of experiences was necessary.

I soon learned that Bud Courney had made a parachute for himself and was intending to test it by the simple method of going up to an altitude of fifteen hundred or two thousand feet and cutting loose from the plane. If the chute opened, it was successful.

After a great deal of persuasion I prevailed upon him to let me take him up in my ship while we made the first test with a sandbag.

The tanks had just been filled with fuel, but I had unlimited confidence in my Jenny, and we lashed the parachute and a sandbag on the right wing. Bud, who weighed one hundred and sixty-five pounds, climbed in to the front cockpit, and we started the take-off with a total load of about six hundred pounds, to say nothing of the resistance of the parachute and sandbag, which were directly in the slipstream from the propeller.

Even with this load we cleared the nearest obstacle by a safe margin and finally attained an altitude of about 200 feet. Then we were caught by a descending current of air which carried the plane down to within ten feet of the ground, and try as I would I could not get any higher. A wooded hill was directly in front, and to avoid striking the trees I turned down wind. A railroad trestle was then in front of us and we stalled over it by inches. For five minutes we dodged hills, trees and houses. I signaled Bud to cut the sandbag, but when he started to climb out of the cockpit to reach it, the added resistance brought the plane down still lower. Then in front of us appeared a row of trees, much higher than the rest, which I knew it would not be possible to get over. We were then passing over a grain field and I cut the gun and landed down wind. The grain was high enough to keep the ship from rolling far and we unloaded the sandbag before taking off again. With the weight gone, we had no trouble in getting out of the grain and back to the flying field.

A week later Bud carried out his original intention of testing the chute. It was successful.

Before continuing the flight to Minnesota, Bud and I made a short barnstorming trip through Eastern Nebraska. That territory had been fairly well covered by other barnstormers, however, and we did very little business.

At one place where we landed we were overtaken by a violent thunderstorm combined with a strong wind. It came up so suddenly that we had only time enough to tail the ship in to the wind and lash the stick to keep the ailerons from whipping before the wind struck us. We were both holding on to the tail trying to keep the plane from blowing away. Following the wind was a heavy rain which covered the ground with water and at each flash of lightning the
